U.S. Futures Rise as AI Optimism and Trump-Xi Talks Lift Sentiment

U.S. stock futures are moving higher Thursday morning as investors react positively to ongoing AI momentum and early headlines from the closely watched Trump-Xi summit in China.

- Dow futures: +396 pts (+0.8%)
- S&P 500 futures: +25 pts (+0.3%)
- Nasdaq futures: +93 pts (+0.3%)

The move comes after the S&P 500 hit another fresh record high Wednesday, while the Nasdaq surged more than 1% on continued strength in tech and AI-related names.

AI momentum continues driving the rally

AI-related enthusiasm remains one of the strongest forces supporting markets right now.

Reports that the U.S. approved several Chinese companies to potentially purchase Nvidia's H200 AI chips helped fuel another move higher in semiconductor stocks.

- Nvidia: higher premarket amid optimism around China access
- Jensen Huang traveling with Trump added to expectations for a possible breakthrough on AI chip exports

Key theme:

- AI infrastructure spending remains massive
- Chip demand still accelerating
- Investors leaning back into tech leadership

Trump-Xi summit in focus

Markets are closely watching developments from President Donald Trump's meeting with Chinese President Xi Jinping in Beijing.

Trump described talks as "extremely positive and constructive," while Xi emphasized cooperation and stability between both nations.

Major topics expected to dominate discussions include:

- Trade
- Taiwan
- Artificial intelligence
- Iran conflict

👉 Markets are hoping for improved U.S.-China relations and reduced geopolitical pressure.

Oil remains elevated despite calmer tone

Oil prices are relatively stable but remain far above pre-war levels:

- Brent crude: above $105

The Strait of Hormuz remains heavily disrupted, continuing to create inflation concerns globally despite improving sentiment elsewhere.

Inflation concerns still lingering

Markets are largely brushing off this week's hotter inflation data for now, with some investors viewing rising prices as directly tied to the Iran-related energy shock rather than broader economic overheating.

👉 Current market view:

- Inflation spike may cool if conflict de-escalates
 - AI + earnings strength outweighing macro fears (for now)

 Kevin Warsh officially confirmed as Fed Chair

- Kevin Warsh: confirmed as the next Fed Chair

Warsh now takes over as markets continue debating how long elevated inflation could delay future rate cuts.

 Notable stock movers

- Cisco Systems: surged after unveiling a major AI-focused restructuring plan
 - Cutting ~4,000 jobs
 - Reallocating resources toward AI growth initiatives
 - Boeing: higher after comments suggesting potential large Chinese aircraft orders

 Breakdown: what's driving the market now?

- AI enthusiasm accelerating again
- Positive Trump-Xi tone supporting sentiment
- Inflation concerns still present
- Oil elevated but stable

 Market = bullish with tech leading again

👁️ What traders are watching today

- Headlines from Trump-Xi summit
- AI chip/export developments
- Oil movement above $100
- Follow-through in semiconductor stocks
- Reaction to Warsh confirmation
