

PM Planning with Adam (02/02/2026)

News for Today

- S&P Global Manufacturing PMI (Jan) Forecast (51.9) Previous (51.8) (10:00AM)
- ISM Manufacturing Prices (Jan) Forecast (59.3) Previous (58.5) (10:00AM)
- ISM Manufacturing PMI (Jan) Forecast (48.5) Previous (47.9) (10:00AM)
- $ORCL (+1.8%) – Oracle said it expects to raise $45B–$50B in 2026 to expand cloud infrastructure capacity, reinforcing its long-term AI and data-center ambitions.
- $DIS (+1.8%) – Walt Disney beat holiday-quarter revenue and earnings estimates, helped by strong performance at theme parks and cruise operations.
- $NVDA (–1.2%) – Nvidia slipped after The Wall Street Journal reported its proposed $100B investment in OpenAI has stalled, raising questions around the pace of future AI infrastructure expansion.
- $TSLA (–1.8%) – Tesla fell as its European sales slump deepened, with deliveries dropping to a three-year low in France and plunging 88% in Norway.
- NEM / B / KGC / HL / CDE (lower) – Gold and silver miners retreated as last week's precious-metal selloff extended following Kevin Warsh's nomination as Fed chair, which strengthened the dollar and pressured metals.
- $SATS (–4.0%) – EchoStar declined after reports of a potential SpaceX–xAI merger, raising uncertainty around its exposure to SpaceX.
- $COIN (–3.6%) – Coinbase slid as Bitcoin fell to its lowest level since April, hit by heavy liquidations in leveraged crypto positions and rising macro uncertainty.

- $EL (-0.8%) – Estée Lauder dipped as the company continues a major restructuring under new leadership, including possible brand divestitures such as Too Faced and Smashbox.
 - $ADSK (+1.2%) – Autodesk gained after JPMorgan upgraded the stock to overweight, citing its dominant position in design and engineering software.
-

Market Overview — Monday, February 02, 2026

U.S. Futures Slide as Precious Metals Sell Off, Earnings Heavy Week Ahead

U.S. stock futures moved lower Monday as a sharp selloff in gold and silver weighed on sentiment ahead of a packed week of corporate earnings and key economic data.

- Dow Jones Futures: -130 pts (-0.3%)
- S&P 500 Futures: -45 pts (-0.7%)
- Nasdaq 100 Futures: -250 pts (-1.0%)

The weakness follows a negative end to last week after President Donald Trump nominated Kevin Warsh as his pick to replace Jerome Powell as Chair of the Federal Reserve in May.

Gold and silver rout rattles markets

Investor sentiment took a hit as the selloff in precious metals deepened, extending Friday's historic declines.

Gold, which had surged to record highs only days ago, fell another ~5% Monday after nearly 10% losses late last week, dropping decisively below the $5,000/oz level. Silver remained under intense pressure following a staggering 30% plunge on Friday, its worst single-day drop since March 1980.

The move has been driven by:

- A sharply stronger U.S. dollar
- Heavy profit-taking after months of outsized gains
- Repositioning following Warsh's Fed nomination

While Warsh has echoed Trump's calls for lower rates, markets are focused on his skepticism toward quantitative easing and the Fed's balance sheet. Analysts warned that aggressive balance-sheet changes could tighten financial conditions even if policy rates are cut.

Data in focus: jobs report ahead

Attention now turns to economic data later this week, particularly Friday's January U.S. employment report, which is expected to show:

- Steady job growth
- A largely unchanged unemployment rate

The data could play a key role in shaping expectations around the Fed's next policy move under incoming leadership.

Disney kicks off a heavy earnings slate

Earnings season remains in full swing, with Walt Disney set to report before the opening bell.

Markets will be watching:

- Streaming profitability trends
- Performance at parks and studios
- Any updates on leadership succession

More than 100 S&P 500 companies are due to report this week, including Amazon and Alphabet.

AI spending remains a major theme. Last week's results from Microsoft failed to fully reassure investors about near-term returns on massive AI infrastructure investment. Over the weekend, reports suggested Nvidia has stalled a potential $100B investment in OpenAI due to internal concerns, adding to unease.

Meanwhile, Oracle said it plans to raise $45–50B in 2026 to expand its AI and cloud infrastructure footprint.

Oil tumbles as Iran tensions cool

Oil prices dropped sharply after President Trump said Iran was “seriously talking” with Washington, easing fears of imminent military action.

- Brent crude: -4.8% to $66.80
- WTI crude: -5.0% to $61.93

Crude had surged last week on concerns of supply disruptions tied to Iran and regional unrest, but those fears receded after Trump's weekend comments. Adding to the pressure, OPEC+ left production levels unchanged at its weekend meeting, as widely expected.

 Adam's Watchlist

- $QQQ: Looking to go long off the 618.42's KL for a push up into the 624's KL and potentially the 627's KL. If we break below, I'll be going short off the 615's KL for a push down into the 610's KL.
 - $MCD: Looking to go long off the 321.78's KL for a push up into the 326.30's KL.
 - $ORCL: Looking to go long off the 172's KL for a push up into the 176.77's KL and potentially the 179.77's KL.
 - $DIS: Looking to go short off the 109.40's KL for a push down into the 107.62's KL and potentially the 105.82's KL.
 - $CMCSA: Looking to go long off the 29.90's KL for a push up into the 31's KL.
 - $C: Looking to go long off the 116.56's KL for a push up into the 118.68's KL and potentially the 120's KL.
 - $APD: Looking to go long off the 273.70's KL for a push up into the 282's KL.
-

 COMMUNITY WATCHLIST

- $$META: Looking to go short off the 704.77's KL for a push down into the 677.36's KL. If we break above I'll be looking to go long off the 712's KL for a push up into the 731's KL.
-

