

PM Planning with Adam (02/03/2026)

News for Today

- JOLTS Job Openings (Dec) Forecast (7.230M) Previous (7.146M) (10:00AM)
- $PLTR (+11.0%) – Palantir Technologies surged after posting record quarterly revenue of $1.41B, driven by accelerating demand for its AI-powered platforms across both government and commercial customers.
- $MRK (-1.0%) – Merck & Company slipped after issuing soft 2026 guidance, with the loss of patent exclusivity for Januvia outweighing solid Q4 results that met EPS expectations and slightly beat revenue estimates.
- $PFE (-2.2%) – Pfizer declined after reporting a 3% year-over-year drop in Q4 revenue, pressured by fading COVID-related sales and looming patent expirations on several key drugs.
- $CPRI (+1.8%) – Capri Holdings rose after beating third-quarter earnings and revenue expectations, helped by resilient performance at Michael Kors and Jimmy Choo despite ongoing luxury demand challenges.
- $MPC (+4.1%) – Marathon Petroleum climbed after delivering a Q4 profit beat, supported by strong refining margins.
- $ADM (-5.1%) – Archer-Daniels-Midland dropped sharply after forecasting current-year adjusted profit below expectations, citing delayed U.S. biofuel policy decisions and flat crush margins.
- $TER (+20.0%) – Teradyne surged after issuing upbeat Q1 guidance, pointing to strong demand fueled by heavy data-center and AI-related spending from major tech firms.
- $PEP (-0.8%) – PepsiCo edged lower despite topping Q4 revenue expectations, as international soda demand and U.S. low-sugar products offset softer sentiment.

- $JBLU (+2.5%) – JetBlue gained after Citigroup upgraded the stock to neutral from sell, citing improved strategic flexibility and potential upside.
 - $SOFI (+3.9%) – SoFi Technologies advanced after JPMorgan upgraded the stock to overweight, highlighting confidence in execution and operating momentum.
-

Market Overview — Tuesday, February 03, 2026

U.S. Futures Steady as Earnings Deluge Takes Center Stage

U.S. stock futures were little changed Tuesday following another volatile session on Wall Street, as investors braced for a heavy slate of quarterly earnings that could shape near-term market direction.

By 05:45 ET, Dow Jones Futures dipped 15 points (-0.1%), while S&P 500 Futures edged up 10 points (+0.2%) and Nasdaq 100 Futures gained 108 points (+0.4%).

The major averages pushed higher Monday in choppy trade, with the Dow climbing more than 500 points as renewed strength in AI-exposed semiconductor names helped lift sentiment.

Earnings Take Over the Narrative

More than 100 companies in the S&P 500 are scheduled to report results this week, putting earnings firmly in control of daily price action.

Advanced Micro Devices is due to report after the close Tuesday, with markets focused on demand trends for its AI-focused chips. Alphabet follows on Wednesday, while Amazon reports Thursday — keeping advertising, cloud growth, and consumer spending squarely in focus.

The earnings rush follows a mixed response to last week's results from Microsoft. While the software giant delivered solid headline numbers, investor reaction highlighted continued sensitivity to cloud growth momentum and the pace of returns from heavy AI investment.

After the bell Monday, Palantir Technologies surged after beating expectations, with strong demand for its AI-driven platforms across both government and commercial clients reinforcing enthusiasm around AI monetization.

Other notable earnings due Tuesday include PayPal, Pfizer, and Marathon Petroleum.

SpaceX-xAI Deal Grabs Attention

Outside traditional earnings, headlines were dominated by news that SpaceX has acquired xAI, valuing the combined entity at roughly $1.25 trillion.

The move further tightens Elon Musk's push across AI, space, and robotics. SpaceX remains one of the most closely watched private companies globally, with speculation continuing around a potential IPO as soon as this year. xAI, meanwhile, was valued at $230 billion in a January fundraising round.

U.S.-India Trade Deal Eases Policy Uncertainty

Market sentiment also found support after the U.S. announced a trade agreement with India, cutting tariffs on Indian goods to 18% from 50%.

The deal follows months of escalating tariff threats and was viewed as a step toward stabilizing trade relations. Analysts at Bank of America said a clearer tariff framework could reduce uncertainty for businesses, supporting capital spending and cross-border investment.

Jobs Data Delayed by Partial Government Shutdown

Attention is also on Washington, where lawmakers are racing to pass funding legislation to end a partial government shutdown that began over the weekend.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics confirmed that January's jobs report will not be released as scheduled due to the funding lapse, with other labor-market data also postponed until operations resume. The delay adds uncertainty around near-term economic signals closely watched by the Federal Reserve.

Gold Stabilizes, Oil Rebounds Modestly

In commodities, gold prices rebounded after two days of sharp selling, helping calm nerves after last week's extreme volatility.

Spot gold jumped 5.5% to $4,918/oz, while April futures rose 6.1% to $4,937/oz. The metal had plunged as low as $4,400 Monday, nearly $1,200 below last week's record high.

Oil prices also edged higher, rebounding after recent losses as U.S.-Iran tensions showed signs of easing. Brent crude rose 0.1% to $66.36, while WTI gained 0.2% to $62.27. Talks between Iran and the U.S. are expected to resume Friday in Turkey, according to Reuters.

Adam's Watchlist

- $QQQ: Looking to go long off the 628.83's KL for a push up into the 632's KL and potentially the 637's KL. If we break below, I'll be going short off the 627's KL for a push down into the 624's KL and potentially the 618.40's KL.
- $PLTR: Looking to go long off the 165's KL for a push up into the 167.50's KL and potentially the 169.60's KL.

- $JBLU: Looking to go long off the 5.40's KL for a push up into the 6's KL.
- $WDC: Looking to go long off the 285.40's KL for a push up into the 290's KL.
- $CYN: Looking to go long off the 2's KL for a push up into the 2.75's KL.
- $TSLA: Looking to go long off the 426.32's KL for a push up into the 435.90's KL.

⚡ COMMUNITY WATCHLIST ⚡

- $AAPL: Looking to go long off the 268.50's KL for a push up into the 271.70's KL.
- $PEP: Looking to go long off the 157.49's KL for a push up into the 160's KL.