

PM Planning with Adam (02/04/2026)

News for Today

- ADP Nonfarm Employment Change (Jan) Actual (22K) Forecast (46K) Previous (37K) (8:15AM)
- ($GOOGL) Alphabet +1.3%: Gains ahead of earnings, with investor focus centered on AI spending and monetization progress.
- ($LLY) Eli Lilly +6.5%: Strong full-year sales outlook driven by continued demand for weight-loss treatments.
- ($GEHC) GE HealthCare +1.6%: Beat Q4 expectations and issued strong 2026 profit guidance.
- ($SMCI) Super Micro Computer +10%: Raised full-year revenue outlook on continued AI server demand and data-center expansion.
- ($MTCH) Match Group +7.3%: Forecast Q1 revenue above estimates, signaling early traction in turnaround efforts.
- ($TTWO) Take-Two Interactive +5.1%: Raised annual bookings forecast ahead of highly anticipated Grand Theft Auto VI launch (Nov. 19).
- ($AMD) Advanced Micro Devices -9.5%: Forecast slight quarterly revenue dip, raising competitive concerns versus Nvidia in AI chips.
- ($UBER) Uber -9%: Q4 earnings missed expectations, pressuring shares despite continued growth initiatives.
- ($CMG) Chipotle -5.5%: Reported fourth consecutive quarter of declining traffic; sees flat same-store sales growth in 2026.
- ($NVO) Novo Nordisk -3%: Issued 2026 sales warning due to U.S. pricing pressure and rising competition.

- ($MDLZ) Mondelez -4.2%: Weak forward outlook as price increases weigh on demand from cost-sensitive consumers.
 - ($SWK) Stanley Black & Decker -3%: Revenue miss tied to softer North American retail demand.
-

Market Overview — Wednesday, February 04, 2026

U.S. Futures Stabilize as Tech Weakness Meets Earnings & Data Focus

U.S. stock index futures edged higher Wednesday as markets attempted to stabilize following broad weakness in technology and AI-linked stocks. Investors are now shifting attention toward key earnings — especially from Alphabet — alongside fresh labor and services sector data.

- Dow Jones Futures +150 points (+0.3%)
- S&P 500 Futures +10 points (+0.1%)
- Nasdaq 100 Futures +13 points (+0.1%)

Wall Street closed sharply lower in the prior session, with tech leading losses. The Nasdaq Composite fell 1.4%, dragged down by declines in AI heavyweights like Nvidia and Microsoft, both of which slid nearly 3%. Recent sentiment around software and AI-linked companies has turned cautious as investors begin questioning valuation levels and rising competition from emerging AI models.

Alphabet Earnings Take Center Stage

Markets are now closely watching results from Alphabet after the closing bell, with investors focusing heavily on the company's artificial intelligence spending and monetization outlook.

Alphabet shares surged roughly 29% during the final quarter of 2025, fueled by strong reception to its Gemini AI model and a strategic partnership helping power Apple's Siri assistant. However, like other mega-cap tech firms, Alphabet is ramping up capital expenditures significantly to build data centers and chip infrastructure supporting AI expansion — a theme investors increasingly scrutinize for return potential.

Beyond Alphabet, additional earnings due Wednesday include:

- Eli Lilly — Drug demand outlook remains a key focus
- Uber — Investors watching profitability and growth trends
- AbbVie — Pipeline strength and drug pricing outlook in focus
- Qualcomm — Smartphone and chip demand trends closely monitored

Meanwhile, Advanced Micro Devices shares fell sharply premarket after disappointing forward guidance despite posting record quarterly revenue, while Chipotle dropped following another quarter of declining customer traffic.

Labor & Services Data Step Into Spotlight

With the official U.S. monthly jobs report delayed due to the recent government shutdown, markets will rely heavily on ADP private payroll data for clues about labor market health. Economists expect roughly 45,000 jobs added, which could reinforce expectations that the Federal Reserve remains cautious on rate cuts.

Investors will also watch the ISM Services PMI, forecast to dip slightly to 53.5 from 54.4. Since the services sector accounts for more than two-thirds of U.S. economic activity, this reading is viewed as a major gauge of economic momentum. Any sharp slowdown could quickly shift rate-cut expectations.

Gold and Oil Rise as Iran Tensions Escalate

Commodity markets strengthened as geopolitical tensions resurfaced in the Middle East. Gold rebounded toward the $5,100/oz level, supported by renewed safe-haven demand after reports of U.S. forces shooting down an Iranian drone near a U.S. aircraft carrier.

Oil prices also climbed amid fears that escalating tensions in the Strait of Hormuz — a critical global shipping route — could disrupt supply flows:

- Brent Crude $67.59 (+0.4%)
- WTI Crude $63.56 (+0.6%)

Both benchmarks extended gains following roughly 2% advances in the prior session.

Adam's Watchlist

- $QQQ: Looking to go long off the 618.40's KL for a push up into the 624's KL. If we break below, I'll be going short off the 615's KL for a push down into the 610's KL and potentially the 600's KL.
 - $SMCI: Looking to go long off the 33's KL for a push up into the 36's KL.
 - $MTCH: Looking to go long off the 32's KL for a push up into the 33's KL and potentially the 34.20's KL.
 - $MGM: Looking to go long off the 38.20's KL for a push up into the 39's KL and potentially the 41.20's KL.
 - $TSLA: Looking to go short off the 419.45's KL for a push down into the 414.66's KL.
-

⚡ COMMUNITY WATCHLIST ⚡

- $ENPH: Looking to go long off the 47's KL for a push up into the 50.29's KL.
 - $C: Looking to go long off the 118.68's KL for a push up into the 120's KL.
-

