

PM Planning with Adam (02/09/2026)

News for Today

- CB Employment Trends Index (Jan) Previous (104.27) (10:00AM)
- NY Fed 1-Year Consumer Inflation Expectations (Jan) Previous (3.4%) (11:00AM)
- 3-Month Bill Auction Previous (3.600%) (11:30AM)
- 6-Month Bill Auction Previous (3.525%) (11:30AM)
- Fed Waller Speaks (2:30PM)
- $NVO (Novo Nordisk) +5.7% — Rival Hims pulled its compounded weight-loss pill after legal and FDA pressure.
- $KR (Kroger) +5.3% — Named former Walmart executive Greg Foran as new CEO.
- $DT (Dynatrace) +13% — Strong fiscal Q3 earnings beat and raised full-year guidance.
- $LLY (Eli Lilly) +1.8% — Announced acquisition of Orna Therapeutics for up to $2.4B.
- $APO (Apollo Global Management) +4.3% — Q4 profit jumped 13% on strong client inflows and debt deals.
- $STM (STMicroelectronics) +6.5% — Expanded strategic partnership with AWS tied to data-center growth.
- $NEXN (Nexxen) +16% — Jumped on takeover interest reports.
- $SOFI (SoFi Technologies) +3% — Upgraded by Citizens citing valuation and execution outlook.

- $HIMS (Hims & Hers Health) -20% — Pulled $49 weight-loss pill following regulatory and legal pressure.
 - $MU (Micron Technology) -2.9% — Fell as Samsung ramps next-gen high-bandwidth memory chip production.
 - $CLF (Cleveland-Cliffs) -3.7% — Revenue miss tied to weak automotive production demand.
 - $LI (Li Auto) -3.1% — Downgraded by JPMorgan over rising EV competition risks.
-

Market Overview — Monday, February 09, 2026

Futures Slip as Traders Brace for Jobs & Inflation Data

U.S. stock futures are slightly lower to start the week as traders turn their focus toward delayed economic data, fresh earnings, and continued rotation within the tech and AI sectors.

At last check, Dow futures dipped about 0.1%, S&P 500 futures slipped 0.3%, and Nasdaq futures fell 0.5%, showing a cautious tone after markets staged a strong rebound late last week.

AI & Tech Stocks Helped Fuel Last Week's Rally

Wall Street ended the previous session on a strong note, with the Dow Jones breaking above the historic 50,000 level for the first time, while the S&P 500 gained nearly 2% and the Nasdaq climbed roughly 2.2%.

The rebound was largely powered by renewed buying in semiconductor and AI-linked names after heavy selling earlier in the week. Investors had previously rotated out of high-growth tech stocks amid fears that rapid AI development could disrupt software business models and compress margins.

That rotation story is still playing out, meaning traders are carefully watching whether capital continues to shift between growth and broader market sectors.

Earnings Season Continues to Drive Individual Stock Moves

Corporate earnings remain a major catalyst this week.

Investors are preparing for results from major companies including Coca-Cola and Ford, while semiconductor firm ON Semiconductor headlines Monday's reporting slate. ON has seen strong demand tied to AI data-center power management, which has helped offset weaker electric vehicle chip demand.

Other closely watched earnings expected this week include reports from Datadog, Spotify, Cisco, and Applied Materials, all of which could influence sentiment across technology and AI infrastructure sectors.

Major Economic Catalysts Arrive This Week

Markets are especially focused on two delayed economic releases that could influence Federal Reserve expectations:

- January Jobs Report (Wednesday) – A recent private payroll report hinted at cooling hiring momentum, raising questions about labor-market strength.
- Consumer Price Index – CPI (Friday) – Traders will analyze inflation trends for clues about potential Fed rate cuts later this year.

Both reports could heavily influence rate expectations and overall market direction.

Commodities Show Mixed Momentum

Precious metals are stabilizing after last week's volatility:

- Gold is rising again, hovering near the $5,000 level as investors balance inflation expectations and rate outlooks.
- Silver is rebounding strongly after recent sharp losses.

Meanwhile, oil prices are stabilizing following signals that U.S.–Iran nuclear negotiations will continue, easing immediate concerns about Middle East supply disruptions.

Brent crude and WTI are both modestly higher as geopolitical risk premiums ease slightly.

Adam's Watchlist

- $QQQ: Looking to go long off the 610's KL for a push up into the 615's KL. If we break below, I'll be going short off the 607's KL for a push down into the 602's KL.
- $NVO: Looking to go long off the 50's KL for a push up into the 51.42's KL and potentially the 52.75's KL.

- $KR: Looking to go long off the 71.60's KL for a push up into the 73.11's KL.
 - $SOFI: Looking to go long off the 21.70's KL for a push up into the 23.70's KL.
 - $APO: Looking to go long off the 137's KL for a push up into the 139.67's KL and potentially the 144's KL.
-

⚡ COMMUNITY WATCHLIST ⚡

- $MCD: Looking to go long off the 328's KL for a push up into the 330's KL.
-

