 Market Overview — Monday, February 23, 2026 Futures Slip To Start The Week

U.S. stock futures moved lower early Monday as traders weighed the fallout from the Supreme Court ruling against Trump's emergency tariffs and looked ahead to a major week of catalysts.

- Dow Futures: -110 pts (-0.2%)
- S&P 500 Futures: -0.2%
- Nasdaq 100 Futures: -0.4%

Wall Street finished last week higher, helped by relief that the U.S. avoided military strikes against Iran and optimism around the court decision.

 Tariff Policy Back In Focus

Trade policy is front and center again after the Supreme Court ruled Trump exceeded his authority using emergency powers for tariffs.

- Trump responded by announcing a temporary 15% universal tariff using the 1974 Trade Act for up to 150 days.
- The move introduces short-term uncertainty as countries push for clarity and potential renegotiations.

Markets are now watching whether a more structured tariff framework emerges.

Nvidia Earnings — The Week's Main Event

The biggest catalyst this week is earnings from Nvidia, the key bellwether for AI demand.

- Report date: Wednesday
- Expected EPS: $1.52
- Expected revenue: $65.56B

Investors are looking for signals on AI spending trends after recent volatility across tech and software stocks tied to concerns about returns on massive AI investments.

Fed + Data Watch

Markets are also monitoring policy signals and economic data:

- Fed Governor Christopher Waller speaks Monday
- Durable goods orders and factory orders due later today

These releases could influence expectations for interest rates after the Fed held steady at 3.5%-3.75%.

Oil Pulls Back After Rally

Crude prices slipped as traders assessed renewed diplomatic talks between the U.S. and Iran.

- Brent: -0.7% to ~$70.83
- WTI: -0.7% to ~$66.05

Prices had surged nearly 6% last week on geopolitical risk and falling U.S. inventories, but hopes for nuclear talks are easing supply fears.
