

PM Planning with Adam (02/26/2026)

News for Today

- Initial Jobless Claims Actual (212K) Forecast (217K) Previous (208K) (8:30AM)
- Continuing Jobless Claims Actual (1,833K) Forecast (1,860K) Previous (1,864K) (8:30AM)
- FOMC Member Bowman Speaks (10:00AM)
- 7-Year Note Auction Previous (4.018%) (1:00PM)
- $NVDA (Nvidia) —  +1.5%: Beat January-quarter earnings and guided current-quarter revenue above expectations, though some investors questioned capital returns.
- $CRM (Salesforce) —  -3%: Slumped after issuing a fiscal 2027 revenue forecast below estimates, signaling softer enterprise software demand.
- $WBD (Warner Bros Discovery) —  +0.1%: Slight gain despite a 6% revenue decline, as HBO Max subscriber growth offset weakness in traditional TV and film.
- $SJM (JM Smucker) —  +6.5%: Surged after posting a Q3 beat, though full-year sales outlook was narrowed due to a manufacturing facility fire.
- $VST (Vistra Energy) —  +1.5%: Reported strong full-year results, supported by nuclear portfolio growth and retail margins.
- $DNUT (Krispy Kreme) —  +15%: Jumped on better-than-expected Q4 results, showing progress in its turnaround plan.
- $CELH (Celsius Holdings) —  +9.5%: Soared after Q4 beat, with growth boosted by acquisitions of Alani Nu and Rockstar Energy.

- $TTD (The Trade Desk) —  -14%: Fell after forecasting Q1 revenue below estimates amid competitive pressure.
 - $AI (C3.ai) —  -24%: Tumbled after weak sales guidance and announcing a 26% workforce reduction.
-

Market Overview — Thursday, February 26, 2026

Nvidia Delivers, Futures Slip

U.S. stock futures ticked lower Thursday morning as investors parsed Nvidia's closely watched earnings report and weighed fresh geopolitical risk ahead of another round of U.S.-Iran nuclear negotiations.

By early trade, Dow futures were down 122 points (-0.3%), while S&P 500 and Nasdaq 100 futures slipped about 0.1%. The pullback follows a strong session Wednesday, when all three major averages rose on renewed optimism around artificial intelligence.

The Nasdaq led gains in the prior session, reflecting improving sentiment that AI could deliver long-term productivity benefits — a sharp reversal from recent fears that new models would disrupt software firms and fail to justify massive data-center spending.

Nvidia Beats — But Investors Want More

Nvidia once again topped expectations, reporting stronger-than-anticipated January-quarter earnings and guiding current-quarter revenue above forecasts.

Yet the stock reaction has been muted.

Despite generating roughly $35 billion in cash during the fourth quarter, investors questioned why only a small portion was returned to shareholders. The company reduced buybacks compared to last year, prompting concerns that capital returns are lagging behind cash generation.

On its earnings call, Nvidia emphasized reinvestment into the broader AI ecosystem. Management argued that continued infrastructure buildout will fuel long-term computing demand, even if near-term shareholder returns appear restrained.

In short: the numbers were strong — but expectations were even stronger.

Salesforce Weighs on Software

Shares of Salesforce fell after the company issued a fiscal 2027 revenue forecast that slightly missed estimates, reinforcing concerns that enterprise software budgets may be tightening amid macro uncertainty.

While Salesforce boosted its long-term fiscal 2030 outlook, near-term guidance disappointed investors who are increasingly sensitive to signs of slowing demand in business-facing technology.

The reaction highlights a broader shift in the market: investors are rewarding AI infrastructure leaders but scrutinizing application-layer software more heavily.

Oil Steady Ahead of Nuclear Talks

Crude prices hovered near seven-month highs as U.S. and Iranian officials prepared for a third round of nuclear talks in Geneva.

Brent traded around $70.84 per barrel, while WTI held near $65.62. Prices remain elevated amid concerns that stalled negotiations could lead to heightened tensions and potential supply disruptions from Iran, OPEC's third-largest producer.

President Trump reiterated that "bad things" could follow if progress is not achieved — keeping geopolitical risk firmly in the background.

Gold Gains on Safe-Haven Demand

Gold edged higher as tariff uncertainty and geopolitical risk supported safe-haven flows. Spot gold traded near $5,196 per ounce, while futures hovered just above $5,200.

Investors are also watching upcoming U.S. data, including weekly jobless claims, for further clues on economic momentum.

Adam's Watchlist

- $QQQ: Looking to go long off the 618.42's KL for a push up into the 624's KL. If we break below, I'll be going short off the 615's KL for a push down into the 613's KL and potentially the 609.90's KL.
- $NVDA: Looking to go long off the 198's KL for a push up into the 200's KL and potentially the 203's KL.
- $SJM: Looking to go long off the 115.59's KL for a push up into the 119.08's KL.
- $CRM: Looking to go long off the 191.77's KL for a push up into the 199.49's KL.

- $DNUT: Looking to go long off the 3.75's KL for a push up into the 4's KL and potentially the 4.47's KL.
 - $CELH: Looking to go long off the 58.72's KL for a push up into the 63.94's KL.
 - $ORCL: Looking to go long off the 150's KL for a push up into the 160's KL.
-

⚡ COMMUNITY WATCHLIST ⚡

- $IONQ: Looking to go long off the 39's KL for a push up into the 41.57's KL.
 - $NFLX: Looking to go long off the 84.35's KL for a push up into the 87's KL.
 - $CDE: Looking to go long off the 153.57's KL for a push up into the 157's KL.
 - $CRCL: Looking to go long off the 83.48's KL for a push up into the 86's KL and potentially the 88's KL.
 - $COIN: Looking to go long off the 184.30's KL for a push up into the 190's KL.
-