

PM Planning with Adam (03/13/2026)

News for Today

- GDP (QoQ) (Q4) Actual (0.7%) Forecast (1.4%) Previous (4.4%) (8:30AM)
- Core PCE Price index (MoM) (Jan) Actual (0.4%) Forecast (0.4%) Previous (0.4%) (8:30AM)
- Durable Goods Orders (MoM) (Jan) Actual (0.0%) Forecast (1.1%) Previous (-0.9%) (8:30AM)
- JOLTS Job Openings (Jan) Forecast (6.760M) Previous (6.542M) (10:00AM)
- Adobe ($ADBE) stock sank 7.5% premarket after the creative software giant announced that longtime CEO Shantanu Narayen will step down after 18 years, with the board beginning a search for a successor. During Narayen's tenure, Adobe's annual revenue grew from $3.58B to $23.77B, though the company has recently faced concerns about disruption from new AI-powered creative tools.
- Rubrik ($RBRK) stock edged higher after the cloud data-management company reported better-than-expected fourth-quarter EPS, revenue, and subscription annual recurring revenue, saying its platform is becoming increasingly important for enterprises operating in the AI era.
- EverCommerce ($EVCN) stock fell after the software firm posted adjusted earnings per share below analyst expectations.
- ServiceTitan ($TTAN) stock dropped as elevated Wall Street expectations overshadowed otherwise strong fourth-quarter results from the enterprise software company.
- PagerDuty ($PD) stock declined after reporting quarterly results that missed analysts' projections.

- Once Upon a Farm ($OUF) stock plunged more than 20% after the organic kids snack maker issued a current-quarter sales forecast that disappointed investors.
 - Ulta Beauty ($ULTA) stock slipped after the cosmetics retailer reported a slight earnings per share miss and issued underwhelming fiscal 2027 guidance.
-

Market Overview — Friday, March 13, 2026

Futures Edge Higher as Oil Stays Near $100

U.S. stock futures moved modestly higher Friday as investors closed out a volatile week dominated by the Iran conflict and a sharp surge in global oil prices.

Early market indications:

- Dow futures: +86 points (+0.2%)
- S&P 500 futures: +0.2%
- Nasdaq 100 futures: +0.2%

Despite the slight rebound in futures, the major indexes fell in the previous session as the conflict between the U.S., Israel, and Iran continued to rattle global markets.

The biggest concern for investors remains disruptions to energy supply routes.

Iran's new leader Mojtaba Khamenei has indicated that the Strait of Hormuz will remain closed, intensifying fears about a prolonged oil supply shock.

To counter the disruption, the United States Department of the Treasury said it will temporarily allow certain purchases of sanctioned Russian oil and plans to have the U.S. Navy escort commercial ships through the region.

Oil Holds Near $100

Energy markets remain extremely volatile.

- Brent crude: ~$101 per barrel
- Weekly gain: ~9%

Earlier this week Brent briefly surged to nearly $120 per barrel, compared with roughly $70 before the conflict began.

Analysts say markets are now debating whether the price spike will last or fade as strategic reserves and alternative supply sources come online.

Gold Heading for Weekly Decline

Gold prices are on track for a second straight weekly loss, even as geopolitical tensions remain elevated.

Normally gold rises during geopolitical crises, but this time inflation fears from higher oil prices are strengthening the U.S. dollar, which is pressuring the metal.

A stronger dollar makes gold more expensive for international buyers and reduces its safe-haven appeal.

 Key Inflation Data Ahead

Markets are also waiting for the U.S. Personal Consumption Expenditures (PCE) price index, the Federal Reserve's preferred inflation gauge.

Economists expect:

- Core PCE: ~3.1% year-over-year (vs. 3.0% previously)

Earlier this week, Consumer Price Index (CPI) inflation came in relatively tame at 2.4%, but these numbers largely reflect the period before the Iran conflict drove oil prices higher.

If energy prices stay elevated, inflation expectations could rise again and push back potential Federal Reserve rate cuts.

 Adobe Shares Slide on CEO Exit

Adobe ($ADBE) shares fell in extended trading after the company announced that longtime CEO Shantanu Narayen will step down after 18 years leading the company.

Narayen joined Adobe in 1998 and became CEO in 2007, overseeing one of the biggest strategic shifts in the tech industry — moving Adobe's products to a cloud-based subscription model.

Under his leadership:

- Adobe revenue grew from $3.58B → $23.77B annually

The leadership transition overshadowed an otherwise strong earnings report, where Adobe beat expectations on both revenue and profit and issued guidance slightly above Wall Street forecasts.

 Adam's Watchlist

- $QQQ: Looking to go long off the 600's KL for a push up into the 604's KL and potentially the 606.16's KL. If we break below, I'll be going short off the 596.35's KL for a push down into the 594's KL and potentially the 591.65's KL.
 - $TSLA: Looking to go long off the 400's KL for a push up into the 406's KL and potentially the 414.66's KL.
 - $RBRK: Looking to go long off the 58's KL for a push up into the 62.20's KL.
 - $LULU: Looking to go long off the 159.25's KL for a push up into the 163's KL.
 - $XOM: Looking to go long off the 153.59's KL for a push up into the 157's KL.
 - $UBER: Looking to go long off the 74.16's KL for a push up into the 75.85's KL.
 - $WOOF: Looking to go long off the 3.27's KL for a push up into the 3.94's KL.
-

 COMMUNITY WATCHLIST

- $COIN: Looking to go long off the 199.13's KL for a push up into the 203.17's KL and potentially the 213.73's KL.
 - $UAL: Looking to go long off the 88.43's KL for a push up into the 90's KL and potentially the 95's KL.
 - $IREN: Looking to go long off the 43's KL for a push up into the 45's KL.
-