U.S. Futures Drop as AI Weakness and Iran Tensions Weigh

U.S. stock futures are under pressure Tuesday morning, led by a sharp pullback in tech as concerns around AI demand and ongoing U.S.-Iran tensions hit sentiment.

- Dow futures: +112 pts (+0.2%)
- S&P 500 futures: -42 pts (-0.6%)
- Nasdaq futures: -310 pts (-1.1%)

The move comes after a strong prior session where the S&P 500 and Nasdaq pushed to fresh all-time highs, while the Dow lagged.

Iran talks stall again

Markets are reacting to renewed uncertainty around U.S.-Iran negotiations after reports that President Donald Trump is unhappy with Iran's latest proposal.

The deal would reopen the Strait of Hormuz but delay discussions around Iran's nuclear program — a key sticking point for the U.S.

With talks already delayed and no clear progress, expectations for a near-term resolution are fading again.

Result:

- Tensions remain elevated
 - Oil stays supported
 - Markets lose confidence in quick resolution

Oil stays elevated as strait remains blocked

The Strait of Hormuz remains largely shut, continuing to disrupt global oil supply.

Crude prices are pushing higher again, reinforcing concerns around:

- Inflation
- Central bank policy tightening
- Global growth slowdown

This continues to be a major macro overhang

AI trade hit by OpenAI concerns

Tech is leading the downside today after negative developments around OpenAI raised concerns about the sustainability of AI spending.

Reports suggest OpenAI:

- Missed user growth targets
- Missed revenue expectations
- Faces pressure funding future data center expansion

This is hitting companies tied to the AI ecosystem:

- Oracle: -6%
- CoreWeave: -7%
- Microsoft: lower
- Nvidia: lower
- SoftBank Group: -9%

👉 Big shift:

AI = still strong long-term, but cracks showing short-term

⚠️ Breakdown: what's driving the market now?

- AI concerns = heavy pressure on Nasdaq
- Iran tensions unresolved
- Oil rising again
- Market mood = more cautious

👉 Market = risk-off rotation (tech weak, Dow holding)

💰 Earnings continue to roll in

This is one of the busiest weeks of earnings season, with ~35% of S&P 500 companies reporting.

Notable movers today:

- General Motors: higher after raising guidance + strong earnings
- Kimberly-Clark: higher on strong sales
- Coca-Cola: higher after upbeat outlook

Logging names:

- United Parcel Service: lower after profit drop
 - Hilton: lower after earnings
 - Spotify: lower

🏛️ Fed in focus

Markets are also watching the Federal Reserve meeting this week, with a decision expected Wednesday.

- Rates expected to stay unchanged
- Focus = Jerome Powell commentary

👉 Could shift market direction mid-week

👁️ What traders are watching today

- Updates on U.S.-Iran negotiations
- Continued reaction in AI stocks
- Oil price movement
- Earnings across sectors
- Fed decision tomorrow
