U.S. Futures Rise as AI Momentum Offsets Fresh Middle East Tensions

U.S. stock futures are higher Monday morning as investors continue leaning into the AI trade despite another round of military exchanges between the U.S. and Iran.

- Dow futures: +266 pts (+0.5%)
- S&P 500 futures: +0.3%
- Nasdaq futures: +0.2%

Markets are attempting to extend last week's gains after fresh record closes and continued leadership from AI-related stocks.

 Nvidia ignites another AI rally

AI remains the dominant market theme again this week.

- Nvidia: unveiled a new AI-focused processor platform for Windows PCs

CEO Jensen Huang introduced the new RTX Spark lineup at COMPUTEX.

Key highlights:

- New N1X processor
- Built with Microsoft
- Designed with MediaTek
- Based on Arm Holdings architecture

👉 Goal:

Bring AI processing directly onto laptops and desktop devices for local AI agents.

 AI infrastructure keeps overpowering macro concerns

Friday's rally continued after strong results from:

- Dell Technologies

Markets continue rewarding:

- AI hardware
- Data center spending
- Compute infrastructure
- AI software ecosystems

👉 The AI boom remains one of the strongest market supports.

Iran conflict remains unresolved

Even with stocks rising, geopolitics remains active.

Over the weekend:

- U.S. struck radar and drone-control sites in Iran
- Iran retaliated after a U.S. drone incident
- Regional tensions extended into Lebanon

President Trump continues reviewing a proposed agreement that could:

- Extend the ceasefire
- Restart shipping through the Strait of Hormuz
- Create a framework for nuclear negotiations

👉 Market view:

Deal optimism remains alive, but confidence isn't complete.

Oil climbs again despite ceasefire hopes

Oil prices moved higher Monday.

Markets increasingly believe:

- Even with a deal
- Shipping normalization could take months
- Hormuz risk premium may remain elevated

👉 Inflation pressure remains a key concern.

Rates still matter

Markets continue balancing:

AI growth optimism

vs

Higher-for-longer inflation risk

Higher oil continues creating concern that central banks may keep policy tighter longer.

Notable stock movers

Chip competition reaction

Shares lower premarket after Nvidia's announcement:

- Intel ↓
- Advanced Micro Devices ↓
- Qualcomm ↓

Software strength

- Microsoft ↑
benefiting from its role in Nvidia's AI PC expansion.
