Market Overview — Monday, June 22nd, 2026

Markets Shake Off Early Fear

Futures started red overnight but recovered after diplomatic headlines.

- Dow Futures: +0.3%
- S&P 500 Futures: +0.1%
- Nasdaq 100 Futures: +0.4%

Tech still showing the most strength.

 Middle East Talks Pull Markets Back Up

Big story overnight:

Early selling eased after comments suggesting progress in U.S.-Iran talks.

Updates:

- Iranian officials described weekend discussions as constructive
- Mediators from Pakistan and Qatar signaled more negotiations ahead
- Focus remains heavily on reducing conflict tied to Lebanon

Market reaction:

Fear cooled

Stocks stabilized

Oil pressure eased

But headlines can still swing sentiment quickly.

AI Trade Still Carrying the Market

The bigger underlying story remains the same:

Investors keep buying:

- semis
- mega-cap tech
- AI infrastructure

That's helped markets absorb geopolitical noise.

Nasdaq continues to outperform.

Macro Week Ahead

This week's key reports:

PMI data → economic activity

GDP revision → growth check

PCE inflation → biggest report

PCE matters most because it's the Fed's preferred inflation measure.

Interpretation:

- Cool PCE → bullish (rate pressure eases)
 - Hot PCE → yields up, stocks may wobble

 Rotation Watch

Current market mood:

↑ Tech / AI

↔ Industrials

↓ Defensive areas less favored

Markets still acting like:

“growth until inflation proves otherwise.”

 Watch Today

1. Headlines from Iran talks
 2. Bond yields
 3. Chip strength continuation
 4. Positioning ahead of PCE later this week
