AI Strikes Back

Huge reversal after the tech washout.

- Dow Futures: +0.2%
- S&P 500 Futures: +1.7%
- Nasdaq 100 Futures: +2.2%

Looks like markets got the catalyst they wanted.

Micron Just Reignited the AI Trade

Last night was a big moment for semis.

Micron Technology delivered:

- ✓ Strong earnings
- ✓ Strong guidance
- ✓ Continued AI demand commentary

The biggest thing investors liked:

longer-term customer commitments → makes this look less like a short-term AI spending spike.

Premarket:

 Micron +17%

That's a monster move.

Chip Rally Broadens Out

Micron's numbers spilled into the whole sector.

Premarket movers:

- ↑ Qualcomm (strong data center outlook)
- ↑ Samsung Electronics
- ↑ SK hynix
- ↑ IBM (new sub-1nm chip announcement)

Narrative shift overnight:

Earlier this week →

“AI spending is unsustainable”

Today →

“Maybe AI demand really is that strong.”

PCE Inflation = Next Boss Fight

Even with the rally, today's biggest risk isn't earnings.

It's PCE inflation.

Why it matters:

- Fed's preferred inflation metric
- Direct impact on rate expectations
- Can override good earnings

Market reaction guide:

-  Cooler PCE → rates calm → tech extends bounce
-  Hotter PCE → yields rise → chips could give back gains

Rotation Check

Yesterday:

Money rotated into cyclicals + old economy.

Today:

Money looks ready to rotate back into growth and semis.

Question is whether this is:

- a real bottom, or
- just a relief rally inside a bigger reset

Watch Today

1. Micron follow-through after open
2. PCE data reaction
3. Bond yields
4. Whether Nvidia / semis reclaim leadership again
