Stocks Pull Back Ahead of Jobs Data & Fed Remarks

Futures Snapshot

Markets are slightly lower this morning as investors await fresh comments from Fed Chair Kevin Warsh and tomorrow's highly anticipated jobs report.

- Dow Futures: -0.4%
- S&P 500 Futures: -0.4%
- Nasdaq 100 Futures: -0.9%

Technology stocks are leading the premarket decline after a strong rebound to end the second quarter.

AI Trade Still in Focus

Investors continue debating where the biggest AI opportunities lie as the sector evolves.

The market is beginning to split AI into three groups:

-  Infrastructure providers (chipmakers & equipment companies)
-  Hyperscalers funding massive AI data centers
-  Legacy software companies facing disruption from AI

Despite recent volatility, semiconductor stocks remain one of the market's strongest long-term themes.

Fed & Economic Data

Today's focus shifts to Fed Chair Kevin Warsh, who is scheduled to speak at the ECB's Sintra conference.

Investors will also watch:

- 📊 ADP Employment: 98K jobs added vs. 118K expected (weaker than forecast)
- 🏭 ISM Manufacturing PMI later today
- 💼 Non-Farm Payrolls (Thursday) ★ — the week's biggest economic event

The softer ADP report suggests hiring is slowing, but tomorrow's official jobs report will carry much more weight.

🕊️ Middle East Update

U.S. and Iranian officials are holding indirect talks in Qatar today through mediators.

Key developments:

- 🇺🇸🇮🇷 Negotiations continue despite recent tensions.
- 🚢 The Strait of Hormuz remains a key sticking point.
- 🛢️ Brent crude is trading around $72/barrel, keeping inflation concerns relatively contained.

Markets are encouraged that diplomacy is continuing, although a final agreement has yet to be reached.

 Earnings Watch Nike (NKE)

Nike shares are lower after warning that its turnaround will take longer than expected.

Key takeaway:

- 🇨🇳 Weak sales in China continue to pressure results.
 - Management says the company is improving, but acknowledges "we aren't there yet."
