- Gap ($GAP) -14% Despite another strong quarterly earnings beat, the retailer warned tariffs could cost them $100M to $150M — even after mitigation efforts.
- Ulta Beauty ($ULTA) +9.3% The cosmetics giant beat Q1 expectations and raised its full-year outlook, showing consumers are still spending on beauty products.
- Dell Technologies ($DELL) +0.8%
Mixed Q1 report — earnings missed, but Dell raised full-year guidance as demand for AI-related infrastructure stays strong despite tariff pressure.
- Marvell ($MRVL) -3.4% Even with a Q2 revenue forecast above expectations thanks to custom AI chip demand, investors reacted negatively to the current quarter's performance.
- Costco ($COST) -0.1% Posted a fiscal Q3 beat, but shares slipped as tariff-related inflation concerns loom, despite strong bulk-buying trends.

- American Eagle Outfitters ($AEO) -7% Stock slumped after the company posted a wider-than-expected loss and guided lower for Q2, citing rising input costs and weak demand.
- Zscaler ($ZS) +3.9% Delivered a solid Q3 beat and raised guidance. Also named Kevin Rubin as the new CFO, boosting investor confidence.
- Sanofi ($SNY) -4.9% & Regeneron ($REGN) -8.8% Shares dropped after disappointing results from two Phase 3 trials of their COPD treatment, Itepekimab.
- Palantir ($PLTR) +0.4% Modest gain after a New York Times report highlighted the company's deepening involvement with the Trump administration's data-sharing efforts.

 Fed Watch

- Core inflation eased, GDP contracted, jobless claims up
 - ➔ Market now expects rate cuts by end of 2025
 - FOMC next meets: June 18
 - Fed speakers Thursday: Barkin, Goolsbee, Logan on deck

April PCE inflation slows

- Headline PCE: +2.1% YoY (lowest since Feb 2021)
 - Core PCE: +2.5% YoY (down from 2.6%)
 - Monthly: Both core and headline rose just +0.1%
 - ➔ Signals continued easing inflation — giving the Fed potential room to cut rates later this year.

U.S. GDP contracts

- Q1 GDP: -0.2% annualized
 - ➔ Weaker than expected. Analysts blame Trump's aggressive trade policies, saying they're starting to drag on growth.
