1. Futures Climb on Easing Tensions, Rate Hope

U.S. stock futures advanced Friday as investors cheered signs of cooling geopolitical and trade tensions.

At 🕒 03:33 ET:

- Dow +149 pts (+0.3%)
- S&P 500 +20 pts (+0.3%)
- Nasdaq 100 +87 pts (+0.4%)

Sentiment is riding high on:

- ♦ A holding ceasefire between Israel and Iran
- ♦ A potential U.S.-China rare earths pact
- ♦ Reports that Trump may replace Powell with a more dovish Fed chair
- ♦ The U.S. dollar slipping to a 3.5-year low, boosting equities

🧠 Vital Knowledge analysts: "Markets are responding to the dovish Fed tone and fading geopolitical fears. The macro backdrop just got a bit friendlier."

2. All Eyes on the Fed's Favorite Inflation Gauge

 May PCE price index due today — the Fed's preferred inflation metric.

 Forecasts:

- Headline YoY: 2.3%
- Core MoM: 0.1%

Why it matters:

 The Fed is in wait-and-see mode, watching how Trump's tariffs affect inflation.

 So far, inflation is tame — but the Fed wants more data from June through August before pivoting policy.

 Labor market cracks?

- Continuing claims hit highest since Nov 2021
- But initial jobless claims dipped, showing mixed signals

3. Nike Soars on Strong Forecast, Shifts Production to U.S.

 Nike (NKE) stock popped in after-hours trading after Q4 earnings beat expectations.

 Highlights:

- Q4 revenue fell 12% to $11.1B, but topped estimates
- Running segment rebounding after months of weakness
- Forecasts mid-single-digit decline in Q1 revenue — better than feared

📦 Major shift:

Nike plans to cut reliance on Chinese manufacturing — from 16% to high single digits by May 2026 — to dodge up to $1B in tariff-related costs.

🧠 CFO Matthew Friend: "We're acting now to protect long-term margins."

🏦 4. Bank Stress Test Results Incoming

📋 The Fed is set to release annual stress test results for 22 major banks later today.

Analysts expect:

- All banks to pass
- A "green light" for buybacks, dividends, and more lending

🔍 Wells Fargo: "Banks will have better clarity on excess capital after the results. Expect activity to pick up."

🧱 Stress tests, a legacy of the 2008 crisis, remain a cornerstone of banking oversight and capital planning.

5. Oil Inches Up, Still Set for Weekly Loss

Crude prices rose slightly Friday but are still headed for their worst week in 2+ years.

 Risk premium unwound following Middle East ceasefire.

At  03:40 ET:

- Brent +0.2% to $66.38/barrel
- WTI +0.3% to $64.93/barrel

 U.S. demand remains firm — but traders are watching closely for a rebound or deeper correction.
